Lent $25,000, Free Of Interest, To Veterans In Five Years; Got It Back

Irving Geist, former New York blouse manufacturer, who made $25,000 available for emergency loans to former G. I.'s studying largely on faith in the "character and integrity of our veterans," said that an accounting of the funds after five years provided his "greatest thrill" in half a life time devoted to philanthropy.

The accounting showed that:

Of the original sum, a total of $24,940 has been paid back to Mr. Geist.

The $60 outstanding was charged to a veteran who promised in a scribbled note to pay the debt "a dollar or two a week" when he starts a new job next month. This young man had originally borrowed $100 from the fund and had paid back $40.

The entire fund had turned over eighteen and one-half times, which provided the equivalent of $462,500 in interest-free loans.

There were between 8,000 and 9,000 small loans made in the five years. They usually ran for a week or a month. The average loan was about $50. The smallest was $10; the largest $300.

Mr. Geist disclosed in an interview at the offices of the Knickerbocker Ford Motor Company, 610 Avenue of the Americas, where he is chairman of the board, that the fund had its start late in 1945, when it was discovered at Hunter College that subsistence checks paid to former G. I. students by the government were sometimes as late as three months in arriving. This led to an acute shortage of ready cash for rent, food, clothing and payment of doctor's bills.

Eventually, Mr. Geist, who has [illegible] many times for his [illegible] a volunteer at times. Usually the G. I. borrowers gave as the reason for needing the money the fact that their government subsistence checks were late. Other reasons included:

"Wish to go home for Christmas" —$100; "Doctors' bills, wife pregnant" — $50; "Ran short of money" — $60; "personal bills" — $35; "Waiting for income tax refund" — $20; "Need money for food and rent" — $100; "Have to make a trip" — $65, and "Pay rent and reinstate insurance" — $90.

"In all the loans that were made, not one veteran let us down," Mr. Geist said. "The boy who had not paid, promised to pay. It tops all the rewarding experiences I have ever had in working with veterans. Their only obligation to repay the loans was a moral one, and yet they had a batting average of 1,000."

Mr. Geist said that when he donated the money, he would have settled to get half of it back. When the final accounting was made, Mr. Geist said, he went home smiling. "I think this is the greatest G. I. story of the year," he said. "It should counteract some of the unfavorable stories about ex-G. I.'s and demonstrate their true qualities."

Mr. Geist, former chairman of the board of Joan Kenley, Inc., blouse manufacturer, holds the Medal for Merit, highest Presidential award to a civilian for his work in "lessening the suffering and hastening the recovery of more than 200,000 Army, Navy and Marine Corps sick and wounded soldiers and veterans."

Recently the American Legion presented him its Distinguished Service Medal for his efforts in behalf of hospitalized veterans. He believed to be the only member of the Jewish faith to have been made a Knight of Malta by the Vatican.

Bond Drive To Have Offices In Major U.S. Cities

Formation of the American Financial and Development Corporation for Israel, which will be in charge of flotation of an Israeli bond issue in the United States, was announced in New York along with initial plans for sale of the issue. The bond drive will be part of a three-year plan for economic development of Israel involving $1,500,000,000.

Henry Montor, who recently resigned as director of the United Jewish Appeal, has been named executive officer of the new corporation. National headquarters will be at 2 Park Avenue. The bond drive will be started not later than May 1. Mr. Montor said that the corporation would establish offices in all major cities of the United States.

The amount of the bond issue will be determined at the first meeting of the corporation's board of directors soon. Mr. Montor said that "it would represent the largest amount ever offered by a foreign government through the sale of bonds in the United States." He added that the "launching of the bond issue is the most important step undertaken by the Government of Israel since its establishment as a nation on May 14, 1948."

Formation of the corporation was in accordance with decisions reached by American Jewish leaders at the National Planning Conference for Israel and Jewish Rehabilitation in October in Washington. They adopted a program to obtain $1,000,000,000 in the next three years toward a fund of $1,500,000,000 for the economic development of Israel and for the absorption there of 600,000 additional immigrants.

The sale of Government of Israel [illegible] 1,500 delegates. The three-year plan originally was projected by 25,000 Aliens Helped To Register In N.Y.

An estimated 25,000 aliens throughout New York City applied at postoffices and welfare agencies for registration blanks to file their addresses and other data with the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service before the January 10 deadline. Private and public agencies were besieged by non-citizens hastening to comply with the internal security act of 1950, which provides that all aliens in the United States on January 1, 1951, notify the Immigration Service of their addresses and other facts within ten days or be liable to prosecution.

Registration blanks were available at branch postoffices and from the Immigration and Naturalization Service office at 70 Columbus Avenue, which supplied such agencies as the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society with blanks.

Edward J. Shaughnessy, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said he does not know how many aliens reside in the district and that all cards would be forwarded directly to Washington. Postmaster Albert Goldman said that 200,000 blanks had been distributed to local offices in Manhattan and the Bronx, but had no report on the demand for them, other than that several branch offices had called in for additional blanks.

At the Immigration and Naturalization Service offices at 70 Columbus Avenue, 2,000 persons had come for blanks and more than 800 had telephoned for detailed information. There, as at the HIAS office at 425 Lafayette Street, hordes of men and women, many with children, crowded the information booths and filled the halls with a babel.

Registrants will have to make out similar reports annually within [illegible] registered were required only to notify the Immigration and Naturalization Service of any change in address. Aliens in America temporarily must register every three months, as heretofore.

Persons who have obtained their first naturalization papers are regarded as aliens and must register. Aliens absent from America during the registration period must register immediately on their return. Failure to register entails a $100 fine, thirty days in jail or both.

While officials emphasized that this was no registration in the police state sense but an "alien address report," many of the registrants, most of them survivors of European dictatorships, seemed to expect the worst. Once the simplicity of the blanks was made clear to them, however, they seemed pleasantly surprised, says the New York Herald Tribune.

At HIAS, where 8,000 blanks were distributed and 3,000 registrations completed, twenty-six staff workers helped non-citizens with their applications, filling out the cards for those who could not write English and witnessing their signatures if these were in foreign script. The aliens who came to register there ranged from a man who had migrated to the United States in 1904 to a group who had

Young Biologist Wins Royalty Suit As Co-Finder Of Streptomycin

Dr. Selman A. Waksman, Rutgers University microbiologist, agreed in Superior Court, at Newark, N.J., to share royalties with a former student whom he officially recognized as a co-discoverer of the antibiotic drug, streptomycin. As part of the settlement of a suit brought against Dr. Waksman by his former student, Dr. Albert Schatz, of 210 Riverdale Avenue, Brooklyn, Dr. Schatz will receive 3 per cent of royalties subsequent to October 1, 1950, and $150,000 for relinquishing foreign rights to the drug.

He agreed to retract charges made March 10 in his original complaint that Dr. Waksman had used "fraud and duress" to induce Dr. Schatz to assign his patent rights to the Rutgers Research and Endowment Foundation. Dr. Schatz's name appeared on the original patent application in 1945, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Dr. Waksman and the foundation, an incorporated organization not directly connected with Rutgers University, agreed to pay thirteen other graduate students a total of 7 per cent of net royalties, and cash bonuses to twelve assistants.

Judge C. Thomas Schettino dismissed the suit following agreement on the settlement.

Dr. Schatz, thirty, who was a student at Rutgers working with Dr. Waksman from June to October 1943, first sought 50 per cent of all royalties for his part in the discovery. The net royalties to September 30, 1950, were estimated at $2,360,000. In a pre-trial examination Dr. Waksman said he had received about $350,000 in royalties, with the remainder going to the foundation.

Streptomycin, a drug obtained from a mold, has been found useful in the treatment of such diseases as tuberculosis, pneumonia, dysentery, whooping cough and syphilis, in certain forms.

Dr. Robert C. Clothier, president of Rutgers University and the foundation, said that, as heretofore, 80 per cent of the royalties will remain in the foundation.

Dr. H. Boyd Woodruff of Westfield, employed by Merck & Co., pharmaceutical and chemical manufacturers of Rahway, who collaborated with Dr. Waksman in the isolation of streptothricin which preceded streptomycin will receive

Israel Awaits New U.S. Envoy

The Israeli Government has given its agreement to the nomination of Monnett B. Davis as United States Ambassador to Israel, to succeed James G. MacDonald now in the United States. During the State Department career that began in 1917, Mr. Davis has served in almost every part of the world except the Near East. He is now Ambassador to Panama.

For some time Israeli officials have hoped that a career man with intimate knowledge of the State Department would follow Mr. MacDonald. As an old friend of the Zionist cause in Palestine, Mr. MacDonald holds an unusual place in Israeli hearts. But there was suspicion that the very fact of this friendship counted against rather than for the country within the State Department, according to the New York Times.

In a premature editorial on Mr. MacDonald's probable replacement when he went home for a holiday last summer, the Jerusalem Post put this suspicion into these words: "It may be that Mr. MacDonald fought our fight too well and another may come in his place who Miss Phyllis Chazanoff, Barclay Avenue, cousin of Bonnie, assisted in serving.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schnarch, Hutchison Street, entertained seventy-five guests at a party to celebrate the engagement of their daughter, Miss Roslyn Schnarch, fiancee of Joe. Isenberg, son of Rabbi and Mrs. M. Isenberg, Hutchison Street, who will be married on January 28, at Chevra Kadisha Synagogue. Receiving, Mrs. Schnarch wore a black lace dress, with a V-shaped neckline, and slim skirt, with a corsage of Talisman roses; and Mrs. Isenberg wore a dress composed of a black velvet bodice, with V-shaped neckline, and a black satin skirt; with a corsage of red roses. Miss Schnarch, the honoree, wore a royal-blue taffeta dress, with a portrait neckline, trimmed with rhinestone buttons; and had rhinestone accessories, and corsage of red roses. Red roses and white gardenias were used to decorate the table.

Miss Nancy Sobel, daughter of Mrs. Rachel Sobel, St. Lawrence Boulevard, and the late A. Sobel, was entertained at a party by her mother, on the occasion of her engagement to Sydney Abrahams, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Abrahams, St. Urbain Street. At dinner for the immediate family, Mrs. Sobel wore a black crepe dress, with V-shaped neckline, and pink trimming; and Mrs. Abrahams wore a black and white printed crepe dress, with a flower design which had a V-shaped neckline, and slim skirt. Each had a corsage of white roses. Miss Sobel, the honoree, wore a tangerine-colored crepe dress, designed with a round neckline, black-draped skirt, with two front pockets, and a gold-colored sash; with a corsage of red roses. For the reception for friends at home, following the dinner, red roses were used to decorate the room, and carnations, the table.

Mr. and Mrs. William Itovitch, Laurier Avenue West, entertained about forty guests at a dinner at Perlman's, in celebration of the engagement of their only daughter, Miss Thelma Itovitch, to Isaac Banks, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Banks, St. Urbain Street, whose marriage will take place in December. Mrs. Itovitch wore a cocoa-brown faille dress, with beaded bodice, off-the-shoulder neckline, draped skirt, and a matching jacket, with a Peter Pan collar; also a corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Banks wore a black crepe and lace dress, with a high neckline, and slim skirt; and corsage of red roses. The honoree wore a black lace cocktail dress, with off-the-shoulder neckline, gathered skirt, trimmed with satin, and a lace jacket, with Peter Pan collar. She had rhinestone accessories, and a corsage of white carnations. Roses and carnations were used to decorate. Mr. and Mrs. B. Craft, of Washington, D. C., uncle and aunt of the bride-elect, were present.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Blinder, of New York, entertained fifty guests at a dinner-reception at the Imperial Gardens, in Bronx, N. Y., in celebration of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Blinder, to Moe Vineberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam. Vineberg, Van Horne Avenue, Montreal, whose marriage will take place on March 18, in New York. Mrs. Blinder wore a black taffeta cocktail dress, fashioned with a boat-shaped neckline, and full skirt, with a corsage of gardenias; and Mrs. Vineberg wore a bottle-green crepe dress, having a V-shaped neckline, trimmed in gold-color, with black beading, and a draped skirt; with a similar corsage. Miss Blinder wore a brown and black iridescent taffeta cocktail dress, with strapless bodice, heart-shaped neckline, full skirt, and a matching jacket; also a corsage of orchids. Arrangements of variegated flowers decorated the tables. Mr. and Mrs. Sam. Vineberg, parents of the groom-elect; and Mr. and Mrs. M. Lightman, Durocher Avenue, his cousins, were present.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Appel, St. Urbain Street, celebrated the engagement of their daughter, Miss Esther Appel, to Edward Lackman, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. Lackman, Mountain Sights Avenue, entertaining about forty guests on each of three successive evenings. For the first evening, receiving friends and relatives, Mrs. Appel wore a black crepe dress, with sweetheart neckline, with pearl bead trimming; and slim skirt. Mrs. Lackman was in a navy-blue crepe dress, with high neckline, and slim skirt, taffeta trimming the long sleeves and the neckline. Miss Appel wore a beige crepe dress, trimmed with beaded brown velvet, which had a Chinese-styled neckline, and draped skirt. For the second occasion, at dinner for friends and family, Mrs. Appel wore a black lace dress, with a crepe skirt, with a high neckline, and rhinestone trimming. Mrs. Lackman wore a black crepe dress, with a draped skirt, trimmed with taffeta, with taffeta lapels at the neckline. Miss Appel wore a blue net gown, with a strapless bodice, matching stole, and a full skirt, composed of three tiers of net over satin. She had rhinestone accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. At dinner on the third occasion, for the immediate family, Mrs. Appel wore a black crepe dress, fashioned with a high neckline, long, tightly-fitted sleeves, with a slim skirt; and rhinestone accessories. Mrs. Lackman wore a black crepe dress, with high neckline and beaded bodice, and a slim skirt; and Miss Appel wore a grey satin dress, designed with a low sweetheart neckline, short sleeves, and flared skirt; with rhinestone accessories, and corsage of pink roses. For each occasion, an arrangement of roses, carnations, and snapdragons was used for adornment.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Litwin, Hutchison Street, announce the approaching marriage of their eldest daughter, Esther, to Eddie Feldman, son of B. Feldman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the late Mrs. Feldman; the wedding to take place on January 13, at six o'clock, at Chevra Kadisha Synagogue.

DEATHS

Benjamin C. Ritz, 6212 Trans Island Avenue, died on Saturday night, December 30. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Lily Goldman Ritz; a son, Morton; two daughters, Mrs. Irving Garber (Muriel); Miss Elaine Ritz; and a brother, Samuel. Funeral service took place from Paperman's, Rabbi M. Fisch officiating. Burial was in Chevra Kadisha cemetery. Shiva was at the home. Mr. Ritz was the former vice-president of Chevra Kadisha Congregation.

Isadore [illegible] St. Lawrence Boulevard, aged fifty-four, died on December 27. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sara Laufer Kalb; two daughters, Mrs. Henry Grotsky (Shirley); Mrs. Samuel Gordon (Pearl); two grandchildren, Rita Grotsky and Fern Gordon; and three brothers, Harry, Simon, and Abe Kalb. Funeral service took place from Paperman's, Dr. C. N. Denburg, Rabbi, officiating. Burial was in Shomrim Laboker cemetery. Shiva was at the home.

Samuel Zanger, 974 Pratt Avenue, aged fifty-two, died suddenly on Saturday, December 30. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Stephanie Goldwasser Zanger; a daughter, Mrs. S. V. Harmash (Susan); a son, Herbert; two grandchildren; a brother, Jacob, of New York; and two sisters, Mrs. Z. Sanger (Luba); and Mrs. M. Yankiver (Dora), both of New York. Funeral service took place from Paperman's, Rabbi Charles Bender, Cantor E. Goldberger, and Rabbi M. Mandelcorn officiating. Burial was in Adath Israel cemetery. Shiva was at the home. A native of Warsaw, Poland, Mr. Zanger came to Montreal in 1926. He was a member of the Zionist Order of Habonim; of the Russian Polish Society; a governor of the Jewish General Hospital; and a member of Adath Israel Synagogue. Mr. Zanger served in the first World War for two and one-half years.

Alexandre Bercovitch, the painter, 78 Prince Arthur Street East, aged fifty-four, died suddenly on Sunday, January 7. He was born in Russia; and studied there, also in Munich, Germany; and in Jerusalem, before coming to Canada nearly twenty-five years ago. He is survived by his wife; a son, Sylvan; and two daughters, Mrs. Sylvia Ary, of Montreal; and Mrs. Ninel Shuman, of New York. Funeral services were held from Paperman's. Dr. Solomon Gold and J. J. Segal, the poet, spoke. Burial was in Tolner Congregation Cemetery, Cote des Neiges West. Mr. Bercovitch was to have opened an exhibition of his work just before his death. For some years he had been an exhibitor at the spring shows of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, and the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts. He specialized in street scenes, but also painted landscapes, in the Laurentians, and in the Gaspe district, as well as portraits and still life work.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dearly beloved brother, brother-in-law, and uncle, Myer Levine, who passed away three years ago, January 17, 1948. Always remembered by his brother, Abraham; nephew, Reuben; and sister-in-law, Nettie Levine.

MINKOWSKY: In fond and loving memory of a dearly beloved husband and father, Joe Minkowsky, who passed away on January 15, 1948, 4th day of Shevat. Always remembered by his wife, Rose; son, Nelson; and daughter, Shirley.

Brooding over what you fear might be cancer is a poor way of spending your life. If you think that you have any symptoms of this disease consult your doctor or, if there is one in your district, a cancer clinic. Many cancers can be cured if caught early enough. If your fears prove baseless, your mind is set at rest. Don't take a chance by delaying diagnosis.

Centers Relieve Child Care Problems

Thirty-nine emergency centers for children have been opened at Maabarot (transition) settlements in Israel by Pioneer Women, the Women's Labor Zionist Organization of America, Mrs. Israel Goldstein, national president, announced in New York. The centers, 27 kindergartens and 12 day nurseries, were opened to relieve emergency child care problems caused by winter rains which have flooded Israel's tent cities for immigrants.

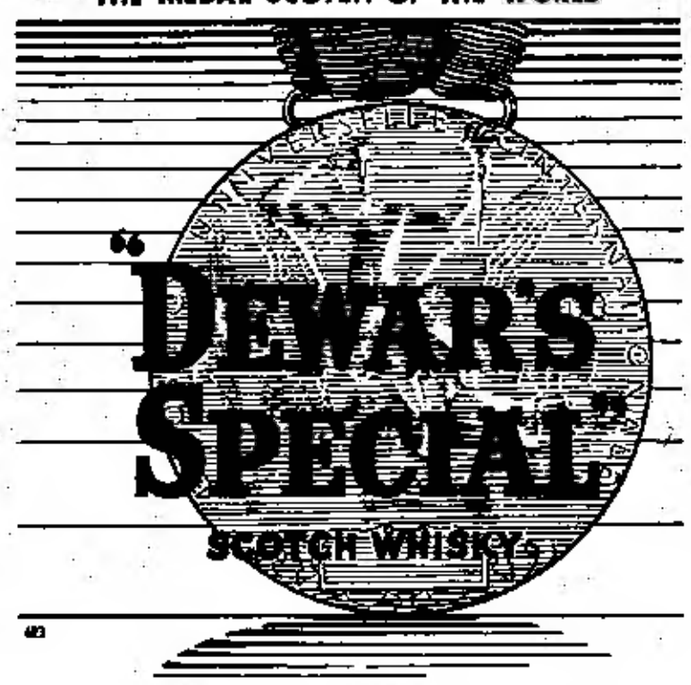
Housed in tents or, where available wooden barracks, the child care centers are operated by the Moatzat Haposlot (the Council of Working Women), Pioneer Women's sister organization in Israel.

The kindergartens and day nurseries care for children up to the age of six. Each shelters from 40 to 50 youngsters. All are located in transition settlements and workers' villages, tent colonies of newcomers established near centers of employment throughout Israel.

In addition to safeguarding the children's welfare at this crucial period, the centers also have enabled immigrant mothers to concentrate on adjusting themselves and their families to their new life in Israel. Under Moatzat Haposlot tutelage, these immigrant women are learning to use dehydrated and powdered foods, are learning to grow vegetables in gardens near their tents, and are receiving instruction in family hygiene and child care. The Moatzat Haposlot has mobilized more that 200 women throughout Israel for volunteer work in Maabarot settlements. Going from tent to tent, these volunteers instruct the newcomers in all aspects of every-day life which are strange and difficult for the immigrants to absorb.

Encouraging mothers to develop a "homelike" environment despite the crudity of the tents, these volunteers also aid each family unit in planting and caring for a small vegetable garden near the living quarters. For most of the newcomers, this is the first actual contact with agriculture in its most basic form. The possession of a garden is of tremendous psychological value in giving the immigrant family a feeling of belonging to the land. Most of the volunteers are "old-timers" among the pioneers of Israel and have left their own homes and families to accomplish this necessary task in Maabarot.

THE MEDAL SCOTCH OF THE WORLD



There is a reason for the unrivalled popularity of Dewar's. It is the unvarying quality of this famous Scotch. A quality that has been awarded over 50 gold medals, at the great international fairs.

Distilled, blended and bottled in Scotland in 26⅔ oz. and 40 oz. bottles.

Proposal Is Based On Home Rule

A proposal designed to preserve religious freedom in Israel while at the same time providing a fertile ground for the nurture of historic Judaism has been sent to Israeli Government officials by a three-man independent committee headed by Supreme Court Justice Samuel H. Hofstadter, of New York. Based on the doctrine of home rule, the proposal was set forth in a memorandum prepared and signed by Judge Hofstadter and two attorneys, Col. Harold Riegelman and Jacob M. Dinnes.

Under the home rule principle, according to the memorandum, Moslem, Christian and Jewish communities would be empowered to enact their own local restrictions regarding religious observances and customs.

"Within appropriate general, fundamental laws insuring freedom of worship or non-observance to every citizen and protecting all citizens from desecration of their religious practices," the memorandum declared, "the principle of home rule may provide at least a temporary, if not a permanent — a partial, if not complete — solution to the problems of the nature and extent of any additional safeguards of Jewish traditions in accordance with the wishes of a majority of the residents in each of the local communities."

Most youngsters have their first complete set of teeth by the time they are thirty months old and from this time parents should concern themselves with their children's dental health. Every child should begin regular twice-a-year visits to the dentist shortly after the set of baby teeth are complete. All cavities should be filled; and small and all teeth infected beyond repair should be removed.

Few parts of the body are abused as constantly as the foot and, as a result, we suffer from an impressive number of foot ailments. Probably the most common is foot-strain, the well-known "fallen arch". Fortunately this condition can usually be treated successfully by rest and exercise. A doctor's services are called for in handling most foot complaints.

THERE HAS TO BE A LIMIT

The following is from the South African Jewish Chronicle:

I see that the revolt of the women has overtaken Johannesburg. They are demanding a say in the direction of the affairs of the Johannesburg Chevra Kadisha. If they are good enough to pay subscriptions they are good enough to serve on the Committee, maintain the women. Personally, I agree with this viewpoint and I am certain that the Johannesburg Chevra Kadisha would benefit greatly from the presence of women on their Committee.

In Cape Town, of course, no such situation would arise simply because each synagogue that is large enough has its own Chevra Kadisha. There is no organisation that caters for the whole community as in Johannesburg. In these Congregations where women are eligible to serve on the Synagogue Committee, the women members of the Congregation are indirectly represented on that Congregation's Chevra Kadisha. Would I be sticking my neck out if I expressed the opinion that it is an extraordinary and much to be deplored state of affairs that the Mother Community of South Africa has no unified Chevra Kadisha organisation?

Be that as it may, I thought that I would get the opinion of someone who had a working knowledge of the subject. So I tackled my old friend the Shammas. I told him what was afoot in Johannesburg and asked him what he thought about the matter.

"Gesundt solt ihr zein and may you live till a hundred and twenty years but what kind of a business would it be? Its enought already that a man can't call a pair of trousers his own. The world is upside down enough already with all these modern ideas. Mind you, I've got nothing against the veiber. But there should be a limit. Take me, for instance. You know my Yiddine. Day and night she throws it in my face because I'm a shammas. Not everybody can be a gabbai. I tell her somebody must be a shammas. Besides, if everybody was a gabbai how could you have a proper Shul? How could it go on? The gabbais change. But the shammas, if he understands the business, remains the same and believe me, or believe me not, I'm not telling out of cheder when I say that without us, shammosim, the gabbais would be ois gabbais."

"I mean to say", my shammas went on, warming up his subject, "you must look at the thing logish. Mir wellen zogen, lemoshal, as the women are already on the Chevra Kadisha Committee, God forbid, such a day should come. All right, then, can you tell me why a Yiddine should not become a President of a Shul? No, really, Mr. Hasofer, I ask you, you're a man what has seen something in your life, what would it be like? Nu, allright, we'll say the world has gone meshuge altogether and a Yiddine is President. If that is the case, so can you tell me, why, mit heint gedacht, nit do gedacht, a Yiddine should not become a shammas? That, I tell you, would be the end of the world. When that day comes — well, I wouldn't like to say anything — but I tell you, there must be a limit somewhere. As it is, my ploiniste is always saying, if only she was a man."

When you have a craving for candies, try substituting dried fruits or nuts. They are easier on your teeth and supply the iron that is necessary to your health.

MARRIAGES

GASOI-EPSTEIN

The marriage of Freda, daughter of Mrs. Henry Epstein, 5311 Cote St. Luc Road, and the late Henry Epstein, to Sheldon Gasoi, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gasoi, 5514 Hutchison Street, took place on Sunday, November 19, at half-past five o'clock, at Shaare Zion Synagogue. Rabbi Maurice S. Cohen, assisted by Cantor Gabriel Bercovits, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Lionel Epstein. She wore a gown of white satin, with a neckline of nylon net, trimmed with seed pearl beads, and a long skirt, extending into a long train. She had a small crown headdress of seed pearl beads, and a veil of tulle illusion, and carried a Bible, with orchids, and streamers of bouvardia. Mrs. Moe Cohen, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, wearing a midnight-blue gown of net over taffeta, with a beaded bodice, and a headdress of blending shades of tulle, and carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses. Miss Gloria Fine, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of flaming-pink net over taffeta, with a tightly-fitted bodice, and bouffant skirt; also a matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of yellow carnations and pom-poms. Ben. Segal, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man; and the ushers were Burril Fine, Daniel Morris, Oscar Bennett, Leon Segal, Max Bailey, and Joseph Josephs. Standards of chrysanthemums, pom-poms and palms banked the altar; and candles marked the aisle. At the dinner-reception which followed, vari-colored chrysanthemums, and carnations, with candles, decorated the tables. Mrs. Epstein, mother of the bride, wore a gown of champagne-colored crepe, and lace; matching feathered hat, with green birds of paradise for trimming, and a corsage of yellow Talisman roses. Mrs. Gasoi, mother of the groom, wore a gown of pale grey crepe, a hat of grey tulle illusion and a corsage of pink roses. The bride and groom flew to New York, and Lake Placid, for their wedding trip. For travelling, the bride wore a grey suit, with a matching hat, and accessories and a Persian lamb coat. Mrs. Louis Hoffman, of Bridgewater, N. S.; Mrs. J. Traister, of Newburyport, Mass.; Mrs. R. Rosen, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rosen, of New Jersey; Rabbi Samuel Epstein, of Rockville, Conn.; N. Engel and J. Engel, of New York, were wedding guests.

QUINT-HOLLINGER

The marriage of Arlene Louise, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hollinger, Clanranald Avenue, to Theodore Quint, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Quint, Mount Royal Boulevard, took place at noon, on Sunday, December 17, in the Blue Room of the Ritz Carlton Hotel. Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi, and Cantor Otto Staeren officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white Duchess satin, with long sleeves, and a full skirt, with long train, and had a veil of tulle illusion, with a headdress of seed pearl beads, with orange blossoms. She carried a Bible, with orchids, and streamers of bouvardia. Mrs. George Rauch and Mrs. Leo Rosentzveig, sisters of the bride, attended her. They were gowned alike in gold-shaded lame bodices, and bouffant skirts of biscuit-colored net, over reseda-green taffeta. They had headdresses of blending tulle, to match that of the bride's, and carried spray bouquets of Chief Kokomo carnations. Hyman Braungtein was best man; and the ushers were Arnold Hollinger, brother of the bride; Leo Rosentzveig and George Rauch, brothers-in-law of the bride; and I. Engle. The altar was banked with white chrysanthemums, pom-poms and carnations; and shepherd's staves marked the aisle. For the luncheon reception, the table decorations were composed of white, yellow and bronze-shaded chrysanthemums, and pom-poms. Mrs. Hollinger, mother of the bride, wore a gown of green and brown iridescent taffeta, with a small hat, trimmed with natural birds of paradise, and a corsage of bronze-shaded orchids. Mrs. Quint, mother of the groom, wore a gown of honey-colored lace and net, with a green flowered hat, and a similar corsage. The bride and groom flew to New York, and are on a cruise to South America. For travelling, the bride wore a brown suit, with a matching hat and accessories, and a grey lamb coat. They will live on Dunlop Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Levy, of Hamilton, Ont., cousins of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bindman, of Thetford Mines, uncle and aunt of the groom; Mrs. Charlotte Grossman, of Detroit, Mich, cousin of the groom; and Miss Stella Silverstein, of New York, were wedding guests.

GOLDBERG-OSTOR

The marriage of Esther, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Ostor, Dornal Avenue, to Daniel Goldberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Goldberg, Van Horne Avenue, took place on December 17, in the York Room of the Windsor Hotel, Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi, officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of blush-pink bridal satin. Made with a Basque-styled waistline, it had long, tight sleeves, a portrait neckline, and a satin underskirt, topped with three layers of tulle, appliqued with satin petals, and ending in a short train. Her fingertip-length veil of tulle illusion was draped to a tulle-covered satin cap, with petal appliques, and her bouquet was composed of blush-pink gardenias and white lilacs. Mrs. Ruby Rubelsky, the matron of honor, wore a Nile-green net gown, with a tiered skirt, and matching stole. Her small headdress was made of Nile-green tulle, and her cascade bouquet was of Talisman roses. Mary Louise Abramowitz the flower girl, wore a floor-length dress of Nile-green net over white; with a halo headdress of Sweetheart roses to match her bouquet. George Berlin was best man; and the ushers were Moe Grover and Joseph Greenbaum. White chrysanthemums, white pom-poms, and evergreens composed the decorations. The reception was in the Prince of Wales Room, of the Windsor Hotel. Mrs. Ostor, mother of the bride, wore a gown of eyelamen-shaded chiffon, over satin, fashioned with a softly-draped bodice, and draped shoulder sleeves; with a full skirt, finishing in a short train. She had a headdress of ostrich tips, toning gloves, and a corsage of bronze-shaded orchids. Mrs. Goldberg, mother of the groom, wore a gown of steel-grey lace and tulle, a matching tulle hat, trimmed with pink osprey, and a corsage of orchids. The bride and groom left to spend their wedding trip in New York, and Bermuda, the bride travelling in a brown-checked light wool suit, with brown accessories; a muskrat coat, and a corsage of pink roses. They will reside on Cote St. Luc Road. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Dubnik, uncle and aunt of the bride; and Mrs. Sonia Dubnik, aunt of the bride, all of New York, were wedding guests.

CLASS IN COOKERY

PRIZE KRISS KRINGLES

one-half cup shortening
one-quarter cup white sugar
one egg yolk
one tablespoon grated orange peel one teaspoon lemon juice
one teaspoon grated lemon peel one cup cake flour
one-eighth teaspoon salt
one slightly beaten egg white nuts and cherries

Cream shortening and sugar; add beaten egg yolk, orange and lemon peel, and lemon juice. Beat, then stir in flour and salt. Chill in refrigerator until firm, then form into small balls. Dip into egg white, roll in nuts, and place on each one a half of a cherry. Bake on greased cookie sheet, in 325 degree oven for twenty minutes.

Mrs. Irwin Bergman,
614 Ossington Avenue, Toronto.

SPONGE CAKE

six eggs
one cup sugar
juice of one lemon
pinch of salt
one cup all-purpose flour, sifted three times
one teaspoon baking powder

Beat egg whites stiffly until they stand in peaks; and add one-half cup sugar. Beat the egg-yolks until thick and lemon-colored, add the remaining one-half cup sugar; salt, and lemon juice. Beat until thick and lemon-colored once more; and then gently fold in two mixtures together. At the last, fold in flour and baking powder, sifted together. Pour into sponge cake pan which has been oiled, or lined with paper; and bake in a 325-degree oven for about one and one-quarter hours, or until cake leaves sides of pan. Turn on rack to cool before removing from pan.

Mrs. S. Stotland,
4966 Kent Avenue, Montreal.

This recipe won honorable mention in its class, in the contest sponsored by Montreal's Laurentian Chapter, Number 520, Bnai Brith Women.

Notice To Organizations:

Space in the Meetings department of the Review is at a premium with demands for service increasing all the time. Therefore, all organizations and institutions requiring publicity are advised to instruct their contributors that in order to be sure of publication any current week, news material should be in the Montreal office by five o'clock on Monday of that week. News for any department in the Review which is received earliest and submitted in the best condition for editing and printing is used first. Material should be typed double or triple space; first copy, no carbon; on one side of each sheet; and not on filmsy or colored paper. Material containing abbreviated or capitalized words; and names without correct initials; or without full first names for single women or girls is always omitted. The Review is here to serve. Make full use of publicity for the success of communal undertakings. If your news does not appear, there is a reason. Find out why.

76th. ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING OF THE NATIONAL CANADIAN BANK

Assets, deposits and loans at new peaks

Outline of business conditions by the president

The 76th. annual general meeting of the shareholders of the National Canadian Bank was held in Montreal, on Tuesday, January 9, at the head office of the Bank, under the chairmanship of Mr. Charles St-Pierre.

The report of the Board of Directors for the financial year ending November 30, 1950, which was submitted by the general manager, Mr. Ulric Roberge, discloses that the Bank has achieved further progress.

Profits for the year, showing a gain of $416,034 over the previous year, amounted to $1,790,743. After provision for federal and provincial taxes, contribution of $300,000 to the staff pension fund, amortization of bank premises and payment of dividends, the credit balance of Profit and Loss Account increased from $545,789 to $651,428.

Deposits, having gained more than $9 million during the year, reached the all-time high of $423,711,275. Savings deposits, having increased by more than 5 and a half millions, are at a record figure of $301,166,481.

Total assets of the Bank aggregate $439,550,113, a new peak. Cash assets of $71,137,804 represent 16.79% of liabilities to the public. Quick assets at $261,680,117 are equal to 61.75% of liabilities to the public.

The amount of current loans and discounts, which has increased by more than $20 million during the past year, has risen to the record figure of $152,291,626. Loans to municipalities have more than doubled, being $17,716,016 as compared with $8,367,232. This remarkable expansion of the Bank's credit operations has naturally brought some change in the distribution of its assets. This explains why investments have decreased during the year from $210,938,117 to $186,986,305.

"There is one important element of the Bank's assets which does not appear in the balance sheet, because it would be impossible to appraise it in figures, said the general manager. The further progress shown during the past financial year can doubtless be attributed in large measure to the loyalty of the staff which, in the performance of its duties, has always shown itself conscious of its responsibilities towards both the clients and the Bank."

The president, Mr. Charles St-Pierre, gave an outline of general business conditions and laid stress on the remarkable development of the Province of Quebec whose prospects are doubtless more promising today than ever.

Speaking of the consequences of rearmament, Mr. St-Pierre showed that the present situation offers difficulties much more serious than that of 1940. "The intervention of the authorities, whatever form it takes, could not put a brake on the rise in prices unless the public, more enlightened and more aware of the danger which is threatening it cooperates with them by restricting its expenditures as fully as possible. It is to be hoped that all governments — federal, provincial and municipal — endeavour to set an example of economy to the community.

The development of production, added the president, is unquestionably the most effective means of fighting inflation. This objective will present serious difficulties at a time when rearmament is going to demand an ever greater mobilisation of man-power and materials. It is, however, not unattainable, provided management and labor leaders collaborate loyally so as to step up labor productivity, and provided the Government draws up its fiscal policy in such a way as to encourage both the investment of capital in manufacturing and the modernization of equipment.

"In the state of profound uncertainty in which the world finds itself today," said Mr. St-Pierre in concluding his remarks, "it is obvious that the utmost prudence is requisite from all. There are, however, good reasons for hope. Whatever prospects are today, we must not lose sight of the fact that Canada is a country in full development, that it has emerged from two world wars greater than before, and that its economic power and its tremendous reserves of natural wealth promise it a most brilliant future. We can, therefore, await with confidence the return of an era of genuine peace and prosperity."

The shareholders reelected the Board of Directors as follows: Mr. L. J. Adjutor Amyot, Mr. Armand Chaput, Mr. Aristide Cousineau, Mr. Auguste Desilets, K.C., Hon. J. M. Dessureault, Mr. Geo. T. Donohue, Hon. Wilfred Gagnon, Mr. Charles Laurendeau, K.C., Mr. Beaudry Leman, Mr. A. J. Major, Hon. Jacob Nicol, Hon. Alphonse Raymond, Mr. Leo C. Ryan and Mr. Charles St-Pierre.

BOND DRIVE

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel last September in Jerusalem at a meeting with fifty American Jewish business and communal leaders. Of the $1,500,000,000, Mr. Ben-Gurion said, $500,000,000 would be raised by the Israelis.

In addition to the bond sale, the program calls for an enlarged United Jewish Appeal campaign, the stimulation of private investment in Israel and grants-in-aid from this country to Israel. Mr. Montor said that Israel's population was 1,250,000 at the end of last year, with only 3,000 persons registered as unemployed. He added that the national income had risen from $50,000,000 in 1937 to $840,000,000 in 1950.

2 per cent of the royalties, the highest single apportionment after that of Dr. Schatz.

Among the others are Dr. Robert L. Starkey and Dr. Frederick R. Beaudette of New Brunswick, Dr. H. Corwin Hinshaw of San Francisco, Dr. William F. Feldman of Rochester, Minn., and Mrs. Elizabeth Bugie Gregory of Rahway, a laboratory assistant.

Among twelve who will receive bonuses, the amounts to be set by the foundation, is Mrs. Edith Adams, of Milltown, widow of John Adams, who was a dishwasher in the laboratory. He died several months ago.

Dr. Schatz, who was in court when the compromise was approved, later issued a statement in the office of his counsel, Jerome C. Eisenberg, expressing his gratification at being "recognized as the co-discoverer of streptomycin," says the New York Times. Also an alumnus of Rutgers, he said that in agreeing to the settlement he had been "influenced by the fact that the foundation and the public trust imposed upon it might be jeopardized if the litigation were to continue to its ultimate conclusion."

Dr. Schatz lives at 210 Riverdale Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., is married and has a two-year-old daughter.

25,000 ALIENS

arrived on the General Taylor, the latest displaced persons ship to arrive.

The report card asks for the alien's name, the name under which he registered on arrival, his registration number, his present address, his birth date and the country of which he is a national.

Simple as the blank appeared, it posed problems. Parents, who were to sign the report cards of their children under fourteen years of age, found their families split: youngsters born abroad had to be registered as aliens while their younger brothers and sisters, born since the families' arrival, were American citizens. Again, a man like Samual Samuels, who had come two years ago, might have some difficulty remembering how, when he arrived as Samul Szmulewicz, he had spelled his name in English. The HIAS records cleared the matter up for him.

For newly arrived immigrants, 1,100 of whom are living in the HIAS shelter, there were words of advice and admonition from old hands who had come six or eight months earlier. The twenty-six staff workers resorted to Yiddish, Polish, Russian, French, Italian and German in explaining procedures.

At the HIAS office, where applicants had arrived as early as 7:45 a.m., long before the report blanks were delivered, Mr. Shaughnessy arrived to distribute the first 200 cards, at 9:30. Many, accustomed to carrying police identity cards in their native lands, expected at least to be fingerprinted. When Mr. Shaughnessy, a jovial red-faced white-haired man, distributed the cards, shaking hands with the recipients, smiling and, as one official remarked, "making it a family affair," the atmosphere changed almost immediately, says the New York Herald Tribune.

At the Alliance of New American Jews, 673 Broadway, 1,100 cards were distributed to men and women who were assisted in filling them out by a special staff of seven advisers. "Their attitude has been that they are so accustomed to filling out forms and registering that nothing disturbs them," Mrs. Dorothy H. Klein, assistant director, said. "They're calm and resigned and pleased that it's as simple as it is."

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

H. M. Caiserman

The sudden departure of H. M. Caiserman, beloved leader and laborer for over forty years in so many good causes in our dominion, shocked us all. He was ever so much the embodiment of life and enthusiasm that we find it difficult to think of him in terms of death. Nearly two decades ago we learned to admire this man. He was so versatile, his heart throbbed with so much warmth for Yiddishkeit, and his was such a sensitive soul.

In our pioneer public relations work, Caiserman proved a tower of strength. He would wish me to say in that he was our happy comrade in the building of the first bridges of understanding between the French Catholic and Jewish communities of this great Province of Quebec. On this engaging subject, Caiserman filed a record which should be publicized as a matter of history and as a recognition of our friend's genuine service to a most important work in the improvement of human relationship and a better Canadianism.

We are of the conviction that if it were not for H. M. Caiserman, there probably would never have come into being such an organization as the Canadian Jewish Congress is today. He constituted the soul of the Congress. We recall how he sweated and toiled to build the organization and we recall, too, how he had to "schnor" for the funds to keep the office of the Congress going. We rejoice that some of us stood by him when so many proved indifferent to the cause he represented and to Caiserman's very leadership. In 1936, Caiserman and I were the accredited delegates of Canadian Jewry and helped in the founding of the World Jewish Congress under the leadership of the late Dr. Stephen S. Wise at Geneva, Switzerland. Here at this conclave of world Jewish leaders, I saw in what esteem our friend was held by all who knew him.

What a pity it is that one is seldom given the appreciation he so richly deserves during life, in the community wherein he labors and dwells. When Caiserman reached the good age of sixty-five, he should have taken the opportunity for leisure in which he might have written for us the story of the emergence of Canadian Jewry during the past four decades. We owe much to past generations of builders and Caiserman might have given us an appreciative work in this regard. The best tribute we can pay him is to say that he leaves an empty space in our Jewish communal life. His name will be held in esteem in the annals of Canadian Jewry by those who have appreciation for faithful service rendered.

A Spirit Of Gratitude

One of the greatest of virtues is that of gratitude, a spirit of thankfulness for the blessings of life. Too few of us count our blessings. We only remember God when we are in distress. We remind ourselves of God's authority when we are in trouble. Modern man in particular because of scientific advance, the supposed conquest of nature, is lacking humility and hence is unmindful of the "Source of Life." Modern man just lacks a spirit of thankfulness. He too often speaks of himself as "the self-made man." What human is there who, having reached position and success, can claim that this has been achieved entirely by his own ability? Far from it! Behind every successful life there is always another who has helped, and perhaps friends and the environment itself have aided.

A psychological factor in the decline of the practice of regular prayer may be traced to the absence of a spirit of thankfulness. To those of us who are engaged in work of serving fellow man, the minister of religion, the physician, the nurse, the teacher, our greatest compensation is to be found in gratitude and appreciation which come to us from those we serve. But too often the great kindness which we show is too quickly forgotten. Of all the rebuffs we experience in life none is so disheartening in its results as evidence of ingratitude. Happy are we who are so fortified spiritually that we can truly combat ingratitude and rise above it.

But, alas, for the average person, ingratitude is fraught with serious consequences. For the average man and woman there is the danger that the kind heart will be chilled and sympathy will be paralyzed. How important it is therefore for good men and women never to become embittered but, despite "the ingrates" that they encounter, continue because of noble love for human kind in their works of charity and kindness. Noble men, just men, are never ingrates. Only those who are feeble in character are the ones who are afraid to acknowledge the debt of gratitude they owe others. The genuine student is ever grateful to his teachers; the genuine athlete is ever indebted to his trainers.

Our pious fathers made life a bundle of benedictions. Their gratitude flowered out of a religious disciplined life. Every act in life had to be accompanied by a benediction to God, offering thanks to the Creator of all. How important it is for us who move so rapidly in a world of so much speed and noise to pause and learn to say: thanks! This courtesy must have a rebirth if life is to be truly sweet and have some charm. We must not indulge in the poor habit of thinking that all that we need to do is to pay as we go along. There is more to this life than bread and money. The "more" is to be found in remembering not only to pay the physician when he has ministered to you but to say a word of thanks with the cheque that you send him for services rendered. Let us learn to say thanks to God and let us cultivate the habit of saying thanks to all who deal kindly with us and bestow benefits upon us.

"Sometimes when people capture me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

This column deplores the resignation of Mordecai Kessler, until very recently the director of the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association of Montreal, and his departure from Canada to the United States. The Y, the Jewish community, and the larger community of the city stand to lose and to all of them this column extends its sympathy. However, some good may come out of it in the long run even if it does nothing more than make people wonder, at least the sixteen thousand people who form the membership of the Y itself.

Mr. Kessler had all the qualifications necessary for a director of a community center, and more. First of all, his social work training and background are adequate without question. He is a gentleman by nature and by adaptation. He has a dignity and fineness of character and deportment which are bound to make him an elevating influence in the lives of young people in particular and all others as well. He is a man of culture and learning. Moreover, he has vision, the vision without which the people perish. It includes a community-mindedness which sees out beyond the confines and environs of a Jewish center in terms of responsibility to the larger community which makes all lesser undertakings feasible and possible. Vision is the difference between a plain, plugging secretary and a man who has the ability to inspire by a creative program of activity planning.

Mr. Kessler did not choose to remain here where he was greatly needed and it seems to this column that his decision should cause the Jewish community to stop and reflect on it, surmise about it, and draw some useful conclusions from it to file under the general heading of Lessons Learned The Hard Way, for future use. Remember that the Y consists of two buildings, the old one on Mount Royal Avenue, and the new one at Snowdon. This demands too much work for any one man, with an impossible number of hours to the day, especially for a director who is eager to remain cordial and accessible in order to be fully useful by giving his personal attention. It is not the kind of a trick that can be done with a time clock. There is something wrong at the heart of any institution dealing with people which expects to extract the last ounce of endurance from the man who is supposed to be responsible for the way it functions daily. What is it? Who is it?

Aside from the innumerable annoyances which can afflict an institution like the Y, including such a thing as an officious, badgering little watch-dog type of bully who fancies himself as a Great Dane, there is a deep fault in Canadian Jewish communal life which undercuts its social agencies like a streak of dry rot. That fault has created the qualified director who does not direct because he is not allowed to, the director in name only, the director who is hired as a director at a director's salary and who is demoted to the position of secretary as soon as he is hired. How is such a flagrant waste possible among practical people? It is possible through a point of view that belongs back in the era of handkerchief-giving of charity.

Whereas, in an American center as large as Montreal a social work expert is required to give direction to communal leaders whose business, industrial, or professional careers are not expected to provide them with outside knowledge no matter how successful they are in their own fields, in Canada it is different. The director of a social agency knows nothing about the manufacture of nylon underwear but the manufacturer of nylon underwear can know so much about social welfare that he can expect to exact certain steps commensurate with his handsome donation to an undertaking. The enlightened American way is to bow to superior knowledge and to relax the clutch that in bygone days may have been considered the rightful accompaniment to a big donation. The attitude of a literate, educated board is one of respectful attention and anxiety to learn about the views, the trends, and the latest thinking in the shortest time. An expert is an expert, otherwise why have him? One of his functions is to show the way.

Where the accredited expert or director is accepted with immediate mental reservations as to the extent of authority which should be allowed him, look out for the backward community where mulish, opinionated men and women now in the forties will have to die before the name of "organized community" can truly be achieved. Where simple moves have to wait for sluggish committee action that comes too late for use, look out for the deep inferiority complexes that inhabit little Caesars and their henchmen. Where stumbling blocks are set to hobble the feet of a guide lest he get to feel too important, look out for those who require whipping boys for their own personal uglinesses, disappointments, and frustrations. Where you find those who think they have the right to grant or deny democratic clauses in the constitutions of communal institutions, look out for those who consider these institutions as monuments to themselves first and as agencies for communal service second, with the divine right of kings and owners thrown in for good measure.

The Montreal Y has a magnificent building and there is going to be one in Toronto, too. To become that way the Y here was made of materials that were kept up to a certain standard, just as social direction should reach up to a certain standard. Unless the social direction for that building does come up to a certain standard, the building can shrink, no matter how fine and solid its physical properties are. Its sixteen thousand members are its life blood and the enrichment of life which they find within its walls will determine its true size. A progressive director who will stay and a modern attitude toward him can prove whether or not ideas here lag too far behind the collection of funds. A Y which is not in good spiritual condition at the top can turn out to be nothing better than a hang-out with cigarette butts on the floor.

ISRAEL AWAITS

may conceivably help us more by liking us less." No one knows whether Mr. Davis will like the Israelis less, but it is felt that his lack of previous associations with the Israeli cause will be an asset for the country.

From the Israeli point of view this cause would be well served by the State Department's realization of the necessity of rehabilitating the Arab refugees in neighboring countries and of the limitations to Israel's ability, mainly for internal political reasons, to stand more openly on the side of the United States against the Soviet Union, says the Times.

Talk of peace between Israel and her neighbors, it is believed in Israel, is idle so long as the refugees are given the bare sustenance that encourages idleness and receptivity to extremist propaganda of a new war on Israel. What is needed, officials believe, is a rehabilitation program so that the refugees can envision a decent future in the lands to which they fled.

This, in the opinion of the Israelis, could be undertaken through United Nations work and relief administration under Gen. Howard Kennedy, but it will need increased United States moral and material support for the general's mission.

As for Israel's position between the Eastern and Western camps, fear in Israel is that an official policy of "non-identification" with either may lead to diminished economic support. At a moment when the country is pressed against the wall economically and financially, this would be a fatal blow to the aspirations of Israel's leaders.

Despite the existence of one strong pro-Soviet political party, the Mapam, and an insignificant, but vociferous Communist organization, Israel's leaders have taken the country on a wide swing away from neutrality to the side of the West. This is no less a fact because the swing has had to be done under the cover of the idea of neutrality.

It would please Israeli officials and the majority of the public alike if the State Department were to give some sign that it appreciated this position and also that, "they are not sticking to the old argument of figures and are backing the Arabs because there are 4,000,000 of them against 1,000,000 Jews."

Which is Canada's largest bear?

The polar bear is the largest in Canada. An adult polar bear increases his weight 800 times from the time of birth.

The polar bear may attain a weight of over 1600 pounds. But at birth, the tiny young weigh only two pounds. His diet consists mostly of seals, but is supplemented with fish.
